

Standing Together for Students

Supporters of the Federal Perkins Loan Program

Maria Livolsi, President, COHEAO: “The Coalition of Higher Education Assistance Organizations (COHEAO) extends its thanks and sincere appreciation to Congresswoman Slaughter for recognizing the importance of reauthorizing the Perkins Loan Program to all of these students with need and working so hard to bring this message forward in Congress!”

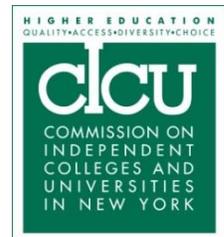

Kerrie Cooper, President, NYSFAAA: “The NYS Financial Aid Administrator’s Association (NYSFAAA) is very appreciative of Congresswoman Slaughter’s support of the Perkins Loan Program and of all those who signed her letter of support. This program is currently providing over $100 million to college students in NY annually and its loss will make it much more difficult for our students across the state to afford college.”

State University of New York Financial Aid Professionals

Mark J. Hill, President, SUNYFAP: “State University of New York Financial Aid Professionals Association, Inc. (SUNYFAP, Inc.) would like to offer its sincere thanks to Congresswoman Slaughter for her support of the Federal Perkins Loan Program. Reauthorization of this important program would help maintain one of the essential funding sources needed to continue to allow our students to achieve their college dreams.”

Laura L. Anglin, President, CICU: “It is more important than ever to preserve and provide adequate funding for the array of federal student aid programs that offer today’s students an opportunity to acquire the knowledge and skills that the nation’s workforce requires, and I applaud Representative Slaughter and members of New York’s Congressional delegation for working to extend this critically important source of student aid.”

Justin Draeger, President and CEO, NASFAA: “We are encouraged by this bipartisan show of support for the Federal Perkins Loan Program. Because the program consists of both institutional funds and federal dollars, the Perkins Loan Program is an excellent example of how institutions and the government can share both the risk and responsibility of funding and educating students. Over its history, Perkins Loans have aided millions of our nation’s neediest students in their efforts to achieve a post-secondary education. For their sake, we are committed to ensuring that this vital funding tool remains intact for future college students.”

David L. Warren, President, NAICU: “For nearly six decades the Perkins Loan program has helped millions of American students realize the dream of a college education by providing low interest student loans. NAICU and its more than 1,000 members urge Congress to reauthorize the Perkins Loan program. We applaud Congresswoman Louise Slaughter (D-NY) for organizing a bipartisan group of nearly 100 members of Congress who have expressed support for the Perkins Loan program.”
